In addition, the authors argue that there is a significant relationship between age, sex, and education level, with older women being more likely to have been exposed to violence than younger women. The authors also found that women who had been exposed to violence were more likely to report physical abuse than sexual abuse.

- the first fish to be seen in the lake was a large black trout which was followed by a small brown trout. The water was very clear and the fish were easily seen. The trout were swimming in groups of three or four, and they seemed to be feeding on small insects that were flying around the surface of the water. The water was very cold, and the fish were swimming slowly. The trout were a dark grey color, with some darker spots on their bodies. They had long, thin tails and pointed noses. The fish were swimming in a circular pattern, and they seemed to be following each other. The water was very still, and there was no wind.
